GMFCU Releases New Mobile App

ST. LOUIS—Gateway Metro Federal Credit Union's (GMFCU) new mobile app is now available for download on the Apple and Google Play app stores beginning today. The app will allow members to check account balances, transfer money, deposit checks, pay bills and apply for a loan.

"We're excited for the new app to hit app stores," said Jay Lewis, president of GMFCU. "Member feedback has indicated that this is a product that would help us serve our community more effectively. The transition from the Touchbanking app to the Gateway Metro app has been seamless thanks to our dedicated employees."

The new app will be immediately replacing the Fiserv Touchbanking app in the credit union's Mobile Money product package. Mobile Money is an extension of the credit union's online banking software, Virtual Branch.

Currently the credit union services 15,994 members, with more than 10,000 using Virtual Branch. Only members who have Virtual Branch are able to view their accounts on the mobile app. Any member can call or come into a branch to get started with online banking. Along with the mobile app, the credit union also offers text banking for members to stay connected with their account 24/7.
